TORCHLIGHT PARADE TO PRECEDE THE SPEAKING

Republicans of Ogden and Weber county are preparing to stage a big rally tonight in honor of Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio, who was both honorary and permanent chairman of the Republican national convention in Chicago, and who will deliver an address on the issues from the Republican viewpoint in the Weber academy auditorium tonight.

The assembly in the academy also will be addressed briefly by Senator George Sutherland.

Charles Kent, who has been touring the state with Nephil L. Morris, Republican candidate for governor, will sing campaign songs.

Plans for the rally were perfected at a meeting of committees of the Young Men's Republican club at headquarters in the De-Eccles building last night. A parade to form a part of the demonstration will be composed of the Ogden band, automobiles for the visitors and the members of the club.

Torches, transparencies and other illuminations will be used. The marchers will meet at the headquarters at 7 o'clock, form in line at 7:15 o'clock and then parade through the business district. The line of march includes Twenty-fourth street from the headquarters to Lincoln avenue, Lincoln avenue from Twenty-fourth to Twenty-fifth street, Twenty-fifth street from Lincoln to Wall avenue and counter-march to Washington avenue, Washington avenue from Twenty-fifth street to Twenty-third street and counter-march to Twenty-fifth street, Twenty-fifth street from Washington to Jefferson avenue, and then to the academy.

Charles R. Hollingsworth, chairman of the Weber county Republican organization, stated that State Chairman Glen Miller probably would introduce Senator Harding to the assembly in the Academy tonight.

Democrats today had not completed preparations for the entertainment of Judge Norton, of St. Louis, who will deliver an address in the Academy auditorium tomorrow night.

Senator Harding arrived in the city this morning, unheralded. His appearance at Republican headquarters caused a surprise as arrangements had been made to send a committee of prominent Republicans to meet his train at Morgan. The train, the Los Angeles Limited, on which he was traveling, is due here at 3:35 p. m.

HARRY GREENWELL TO PLAY WITH THE BIG LEAGUE

Harry "Brick" Greenwell, whose phenomenal pitching in the northern Utah and Snake River, Idaho, baseball leagues during the 1915 season, caught the eye of a Pacific Coast league scout, has received a contract from the Portland, Ore. club. With the contract came an order to report to Manager Walter McCredie at Salt Lake City on October 9. The local pitcher has decided to accept the proffered berth with the northwestern team and will go to Salt Lake, Sunday.

Greenwell's prospects for making good in professional company are unusually bright. He broke into the local baseball limelight in 1912, by pitching the Third ward nine into the Weber county championship. The following year, with the same team behind him, he set up the high record of 23 strikeouts in a nine-inning game. In 1914, his pitching was responsible for the winning of the City league pennant by the Owls' club and he twice recorded 20 strikeouts, once in a game against the Evanston, Wyo., nine, and the second time against the St. Johns, Idaho, club. His high record for the 1915 season was 19 strikeouts, pitching for the Utah Power & Light team—Northern Utah champs—against the Stall & Dean club of Salt Lake City.

Throughout his entire amateur career, his ability to strike out opposing batters has been the feature of virtually every game in which he has been on the mound. Incidentally, he has shown considerable ability as a third baseman and has also been able to hit the ball at crucial moments.

The new Portland recruit is a genuine Ogden product. He is a son of George H. Greenwell and was born in Ogden twenty-three years ago. Physically, he is splendidly equipped for the profession he expects soon to enter, being 6 feet 1 1/2 inches in height and weighing 192 pounds. Many local baseball followers will watch his future career with interest.

DR. F. J. FREENOR HAS BEEN FOUND GUILTY OF CONTEMPT

Dr. F. J. Freenor was today found guilty of a charge of contempt for refusal to obey an injunction of the supreme court to cease practicing medicine without a license. In passing judgment, Judge Frederick Loofbourou stated that the court, regardless of the point raised by John C. Willis in his closing argument for the defense that the statutes were prohibitive of practice only when a fee was charged, the defendant was guilty of violating the injunction, which was based on, and embraced, the provision of the law defining the practice of medicine in this state.

Before assessing the minimum penalty of $100 against Freenor, Judge Loofbourou questioned the defendant as to the course he proposed to pursue with respect to his business in Utah in the future. He said he desired to know that the injunction would be obeyed in spirit and to the letter. Dr. Freenor, in reply, stated that he would suspend his business, that he never would have attempted to disregard the court's injunction except upon legal advice that he could continue his business as long as he did not receive any pay for it and that his land sale proposition was entirely within the law.

Judge Loofbourou said it was the judgment of the court that the land sale proposition constituted contempt, was looked upon as a subterfuge and was amenable under the statutes.

The case was brought to a close at 11:40 a. m., just a short time after John C. Willis had announced that the defense rested. When District Attorney Davis sought opportunity to make a statement in reply to argument of the defense regarding the statute, Judge Loofbourou objected. Then he called Freenor to the witness chair and asked him concerning his attitude toward the injunction.

The chiropractor stated that had he believed he was not operating within the law, or that he was in direct violation of the injunction, as defined by the court long ago, he would have ceased the practice of his profession in the state. He said he had hoped to continue his business until legislation was enacted to cover the situation presented through the injunction of chiropractic in the health field. He offered to continue treating his patients free of charge, but the court held that also would be a violation of the injunction.

The injunction was issued on January 5, 1915, after the supreme court had upheld the decision of the lower court in finding the defendant guilty of practicing without a license. The proceeding was instituted to bring the chiropractors under the state medical examining board.

After the court session had adjourned, Freenor's patients, many of them with tears in their eyes, expressed their disappointment over the outcome of the case.

W. W. DEMANDS ROOM FIGHT FOLLOWS AND HE IS ARRESTED

The case of the City vs. John McLaughlin gave the municipal court judge something to ponder over this morning. The defendant came into court nursing a wounded and badly swollen left hand, the wound appearing to have been made with a knife or other sharp instrument. He entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of disturbing the peace, alleging that the injury to his hand had been the cause of the trouble which resulted in his arrest.

Edward Crewe and George Myers testified that McLaughlin went to the Ogden house on lower Twenty-fifth street a number of times yesterday declaring that he was an "I. W. W." and demanding a place of lodgement for the night. His last visit was marked by especially obnoxious behavior, they said, and Crewe forcibly ejected him from the hotel. He returned a few minutes later and hurled a brick at Crewe, who then had him placed under arrest.

The defendant admitted making a disturbance, but declared that Crewe stabbed him in the hand with a knife, causing him to lose his temper. The judge decided to take the case under advisement until tomorrow, in order to hear further testimony.

George Gordon, an alleged drunk, forfeited $5. T. M. Cox, L. Lemay and William Brown pleaded guilty to drunkenness and were each sentenced to serve five days in jail. The case of the City vs. Mrs. Gene McDonald was continued until tomorrow. The defendant is charged with vagrancy and her bail was set at $25.

CHARGES CRUELTY IN DIVORCE CASE

Acts of cruelty defined in chancing her around the room, assaults, abusive language applied to her, and smashing the furniture, are alleged in the complaint of Verna L. Amerson for divorce from Henry Amerson, filed in the district court. They were married in December, 1913.

The plaintiff asserts that after a display of violence that caused her great mental suffering in September, 1914, she was compelled to flee to her mother for protection. That she then began divorce proceedings, but abandoned the idea of separation on promises of the defendant to be good to her if she returned to live with him. In the month of November following, she asserts that she was again compelled to return to her mother for protection, alleging further acts of cruelty on the part of the defendant and that the same had become unbearable to her. For more than a year, she alleges, she has been compelled to support herself. She asks the custody of one minor child and that the defendant pay the cost of action.
